Dear Sir/Madam:

Microsoft has very good products that it sells at a reasonable price. If you read a history of the software industry, it has succeeded because it sells better products at a lower price. They are an important company in an important industry.

They also export a lot of products when this country has a huge trade deficit. Please be careful in dealing with such a great company. You might create more harm than good in your regulatory efforts.

Sincerely,

Roger Van Cleve
